

The Beauty of my own Individuality

From a deep sleep, I awoke with a start
My mind's eye opened and I began to see
That God's blessings and his loving grace
Granted the beauty my own individuality

Among billions of other fellow human souls
Over six billion on earth to be exact
Not another like me among them all
I smiled to myself, proud of this fact

That I'm perfect in all my imperfections
And unique in my own way In my own right
Granted with God's unlimited potential
Vision limited only by my self-obscured sight

My potential hampered by my own obstacles
The only speed-bump in the way, my own ego
The unending search for my own happiness
On compromising my own values, to just say no

To build and improve but not to embellish
To be my unique self, in all of my self-glory
To be proud, as one of God's many children
To everyday live, and write my own self-story

Not to give up my own sweet individuality
Not to sacrifice my own special blessedness
Not to copy someone else's whole character
Not to be a counterfeit, not me, not this!

The perfect-ness in His creation I realize,
My dreams I will dream, my goals I will set
Dear God this I pray, I promise that I'll keep My gift of unique-ness and my goals will be met.

